Kissinger & Fellman attorney wins Jeffco Schools award

Ken Fellman and wife, Jill, honored at Foundation luncheon in Arvada

DENVER (May 5, 2016) – The law firm of Kissinger & Fellman is proud to announce that attorney Ken Fellman and his wife, Jill Fellman, have received the Salazar Excellence in Philanthropy Award from the Jeffco Schools Foundation, honoring their contributions to the community.

The award comes just at the time that Fellman’s law firm, Denver-based Kissinger & Fellman P.C., is celebrating its 40 year anniversary of being in business.

“Ken has received numerous honors over the years, including eight of our industry’s ‘Super Lawyer’ awards, but this one really measures his impact on the community, which makes us especially proud,” said K&F Founder Rick Kissinger.

When Ken Fellman was recently recognized in the 2016 Super Lawyers Magazine for his ongoing professional achievements, it marked his seventh straight Super Lawyer designation.

Jill Fellman was most recently a member of the Jefferson County School Board, and previously she worked as a teacher and administrator in Jeffco Schools. She is president of the Arvada Community Food Bank board of directors, and she is vice chair of the Sooper Credit Union Foundation board. She was 2015 Woman of the Year, as honored by the Northwest Metro Business and Professional Women.
